Setting the pace

Where credit is due

Tom Banks, Taylor Beckett, Annmarie Hewitt, Catherine Duggan and Roberta Sousa were among the 36 Rockland Trust employees who volunteered at the recent Credit for Life Fair at South Shore Vocational Technical High School in Hanover. Rockland Trust was a co-sponsor of the event, which was aimed at promoting financial literacy among graduating seniors.

Making fast friends

Pamela Rivera, director of F.H. Perry Home, works with one of the kids at Friends of Children-Boston. Volunteers from F.H. Perry Builder spent a recent day volunteering at Friends of Children-Boston, a mentoring organization committed developing academic achievement and strong character development in children from at-risk and underserved communities.
